Building firm's hat-trick of successes

Primary pupils join in big Bard Book Hunt

Daniel Blake (second right) collects his award

Apprentice scoops top award

AN apprentice at a Skelmersdale-based packaging company has won a top honour at a prestigious national awards ceremony.

Daniel Blake, who works at TrakRap in Gorsey Place, East Gillibrands, took home the Group Training Association (GTA) Engineering Apprentice of the Year Award at the Science, Engineering and Manufacturing Technologies Alliance (SEMTA) Skills Awards 2018 event in Westminster.

Hosted by journalist and TV presenter, Steph McGovern, the awards celebrate the achievements of those working in the UK's advanced manufacturing and engineering sector.

24-year-old Daniel joined TrakRap as an apprentice engineer in 2012 before working his way up to the role of mechanical assembly engineer. He is currently undertaking a Level 4 Higher National Diploma in mechanical engineering at Wigan and Leigh College.

Daniel was nominated for the award by Alliance Learning, his apprenticeship learning provider, and beat thousands of apprentices from the GTA's various learning partners across the UK to make the shortlist.

He impressed the judges with his work on a wide range of assembly and research projects, his role as health & safety leader at TrakRap and his involvement with the Lancashire Apprenticeship Ambassadors Network, which promotes apprenticeships to young adults.

TrakRap's operations director, David Robinson, said: "We're over the moon for Danny, who thoroughly deserves his award. His drive, determination and natural ability have never been in question, so we're thrilled his efforts have been recognised by the wider engineering and apprenticeships communities.

"We're firm believers in the importance of apprenticeships as an effective way of ensuring the manufacturing industry continues to flourish in future and, with Danny setting the standard for other apprentices to aspire to, we're confident that that will be the case."

Council chiefs welcome Co-op's commitment to town

BANK SIGNS LEASE TO 2026

Report by Henry James

WEST Lancs Council chiefs have welcomed a major national company's commitment to stay in Skelmersdale well into the future.

The Co-operative Bank has signed an agreement with the local authority to lease Delf House until at least 2026.

Council leader, Councillor Ian Moran, said: "We are delighted the Co-operative Bank has signed the new lease which keeps one of their key offices, currently employing around 700 people, in West Lancashire.

"They are a major employer and their continued presence in Skelmersdale shows the town and West Lancashire as a whole are great places to work as a business.

"I would like to thank the council officers for working tirelessly to secure this lease and the Co-operative Bank staying in Skelmersdale. For the council's part, our work with the Co-operative Bank to keep them in West Lancashire proves we are ambitious for the economy and to retain jobs."

Delf House in Skelmersdale

The council has said that securing the tenancy also provides "excellent value for money" for them as the rental income will be used to help maintain council services.

The Co-operative Bank has had a base at Delf House since 1976 and the offices currently house administration and call centre staff.

A spokesperson for the Co-op Bank said "We are delighted to sign a new lease for Delf House, which is one of the Bank's main telephone calls centres in the UK."

The company is one of the town's biggest employers.

In 2017, Co-op officials gave assurances to the Champion that "it was business as usual" at the Skelmersdale site when the bank was put up for sale.

At the time a spokesman for the company commented: "It will be business as usual at Skelmersdale. The centre is a key part of our operation and will remain so."

Staff from the Co-op also regularly fundraise for the community.

A CARE home maintenance worker has won £250 for naming the new nursing home to be built on the site of the former Red Lion pub in Burscough.

Athena Healthcare Group was granted planning permission for a two-storey, 80-bed care home for the elderly at the site on Liverpool Road South.

The home, which will also provide nursing care for dementia sufferers, is expected to be finished by the end of 2019.

A staff competition to name the new home was won by maintenance man Brian Dobson with Windmill Lodge which he chose because of fond memories of family trips to Windmill Animal Farm in Burscough.

Council plan aims to improve residents' quality of life

WEST Lancs Council has launched a plan aimed at ensuring a range of measures are in place for borough residents to lead healthy and fulfilling lives.

The Health and Wellbeing Strategy sets out a framework to improve the quality of life of residents by integrating health into wider services relating to housing, the environment, leisure, economic regeneration, planning and community safety.

It has been launched by the authority in the face of what council chiefs describe as 'a number of key issues' facing the borough.

These include one in five residents in West Lancashire living below the poverty line; 27% of the borough's adult population and reception age children categorised as either overweight or obese along with 33% of those aged 10 and11; people living in the most deprived communities are twice as likely to die under the age of 75; and high levels of youth unemployment and lower education attainment in certain parts of the borough.

Over the next three years the aim of the new strategy is to start to address these issues and the root causes of poor health through better use of resources and by ensuring council policies promote health improvement.

To achieve this, the council has pinpointed four priority areas as follows:

- To ensure 'across-the-board' action to improve health and wellbeing throughout the borough.
- To take every opportunity to improve health and wellbeing through contacts with residents and in key settings such as schools and workplaces.
- To create and sustain an environment that helps people to make healthy choices.
- To support residents and communities to manage their health and build resilience.

Councillors and council officials at the launch event.

It is hoped this will help to ensure that the council is equipped to deliver the best conditions possible for local people to live fulfilling lives.

Some of the key areas will include working with partners to ensure the availability of apprenticeships, training and skills development opportunities; planning to meet the changing needs of residents who live with limiting long-term illness or disability; working with partners to tackle the upward trend in adult and childhood obesity; and promoting healthy environments to support people to live more physically active lives and encourage families to spend quality time together.

The strategy also acknowledges the council's desire to maximise the impact of investment by developing innovative and cohesive partnerships with key public sector organisations.

Councillor Kevin Wright, the council's portfolio holder for health and wellbeing, said: "This exciting strategy can make a real difference to people's lives. The council will work with partners to implement its recommendations to help improve local people's health."

Building company score hat-trick at prestigious business awards

STAFF and management at a Skelmersdale-based building and maintenance company scored a hat-trick of successes at a prestigious business awards event.

UPS Building & Maintenance of Gratton Place, East Gillibrands was crowned a triple-winner at the eighth annual Lancashire Business View Red Rose Awards staged in Blackpool.

The awards ceremony, honouring the most ambitious, most innovative and most successful businesses in the county, was staged at the resort's famous Winter Gardens venue.

An audience of more than 1,100 business owners, employees and distinguished guests watched on as winners were announced across 25 categories.

UPS Building & Maintenance, which maintains and renovates property with a particular focus on disabled adaptations, took home trophies for Construction Business of the Year, Property Business of the Year and the Customer Service Award.

And director, John Graham, revealed it was the first time ever the business had entered any awards.

He said: "We've never done anything like this before, but I'm so glad we did. What a night, it has been fantastic! I'm delighted for the team."

To be crowned best in its category, each business was first selected from a pool of hundreds of applicants.

Shortlisted companies were then invited to give in-person presentations to a panel of more than 70 sponsors and hand-picked, independent judges.

Commenting on UPS, the judges said: "This is an authentic Lancashire business, demonstrating commitment to local recruitment, training, procurement and community.

"Their principles of 'best quality' and 'customer first' have led to the rapid transformation from sub-contractor to a successful main contractor.

Inspirational

"Their concern for the specific needs of end users is recognised by clients and beneficiaries alike."

Richard Slater, publisher of Lancashire Business View magazine which hosts the Red Rose Awards, said: "We're delighted to celebrate another incredible year of business for Lancashire at the Red Rose Awards 2018.

"The business stories we see and hear through the awards process are inspirational and we're very proud to share this far and wide with the ceremony and awards campaign."

The UPS team with one of their awards

Oliver Burton, chief executive of headline sponsor Forbes Solicitors, said: "We've supported the Red Rose Awards since it launched in 2011 and were honoured to do so once again in 2018.

"The whole process has been a fantastic experience and the event was once again an amazing night. The awards are a showcase of success for so many Lancashire businesses and the highlight of the calendar."

The young people at the Artz Centre with Lancashire's Police and Crime Commissioner, Clive Grunsahw

Youngsters learn about potential online dangers thanks to police chief's community action fund

YOUNG people in Skelmersdale have been engaging in a project to help them understand the potential dangers found online - thanks to funding from the office of Lancashire's Police and Crime Commissioner, Clive Grunshaw.

The youngsters have been learning how to use social media safely, and have had "innovative" photography lessons, after the town's Artz Centre benefited from the commissioner's Community Action Fund.

The commissioner joined residents as five weekly sessions culminated in a gallery-style event, where young people were able to display their photography work and talk about how they have benefited from the course.

The 'In a Flash' project aimed to create a platform for young people to explore the use of photography and social media, which is a part of everyday life, safely, while raising awareness about the dangers of 'sexting' and the pressures that many people face – all the while learning a new skill.

Involving young people aged 14 to 21, the project also aimed to engage with groups who may otherwise be out on the streets with little to do, ensuring they avoid getting involved in crime, or becoming victims of crime.

Clive Grunshaw said: "I've seen the hard work and dedication that everyone involved in this work has put in. Developing safe and confident communities is a key priority in my police and crime plan and projects like this provide real development for young people.

Difference

"Without organisations such as the Artz Centre, many less people would have opportunities such as this. As well as developing new skills, it helps keeps them off the streets, meaning they are less likely to either become a victim of crime or get involved in crime, such as anti-social behaviour, themselves.

"It's great to see the real difference being made through my Community Action Fund, supporting community groups in keeping their area safe and reducing crime."

Claire McEvoy, funding co-ordinator at the Artz Centre, added: "We feel hugely grateful to have received funding from the Lancashire Police and Crime Commissioner's Community Action Fund. This funding enabled local young people to explore the power of photography and social media, its negative consequences and positive influences, too.

"We are delighted with the results of the 'In a Flash' project, and we recognise that the local young people involved, have not only gained new skills in photography, but have also grown as well-rounded, well-informed and safer members of our community.

"Having the commissioner at our 'In a Flash' gallery event was a great privilege, and we extend our warmest thanks for enabling our project to succeed."

Teen volunteer's efforts earn High Sheriff's recognition

A SKELMERSDALE teenager has received a Certificate of Commendation at the High Sheriff Young Citizen Awards for her voluntary work at the town's library.

The Friends of Skelmersdale Library (FoSL) had nominated Niamh Hamlet, 16, who was a volunteer at the library when she was doing her Duke of Edinburgh bronze award.

Mary Whitby from FoSL said: "Niamh was very helpful. She organised the volunteering role herself by contacting Noreen Martin, the library manager.

"She was always keen and punctual and stayed for many more hours than she needed to to fulfil the requirements of the Duke of Edinburgh scheme.

"She arranged and created displays in the library. She volunteers at the children's Saturday craft club and was always keen to get involved. Nothing was too much trouble for Niamh."

Niamh, who is a GCSE student, didn't get through to the final of the Young Citiziens Awards, but the High Sheriff at the time, Robert Webb, was "very impressed" by her work at the library supporting the local community and sent her a Certificate of Commendation.

To celebrate her commendation, FoSL organised a surprise tea party for Niamh with the library staff and the FoSL members.

County Councillor Terry Aldridge and West Lancs Borough Councillor Claire Cooper also went along to present the certificate and celebrate Niamh's achievement.

Mary added: "We would all like to wish Niamh Hamlet every success in completing all the stages of the Duke of Edinburgh awards and in the future."

Cleaning company 'named and shamed' over workers' pay

...but boss says listing was 'down to a technicality'

Report by Kenny Parker

THE managing director of a West Lancs-based cleaning company 'named and shamed' by the Department for Business, Energy and Industrial Strategy (DBEIS) for paying its workers less than the national minimum wage says it was down to a "technicality."

Poppies WL&S, of Burscough Street, Ormskirk, which provides domestic and light commercial cleaning and ironing services, was one of 180 companies included on the 14th list to be released by the Government since 2013.

The DBEIS said that Poppies had failed to pay a total of £1,061.70 to 69 workers.

However, Chris Wootton, managing director of Poppies WL&S, said that the company had fallen foul of a technicality and actually paid its workers more than the national minimum wage.

He said: "Despite our wage offering always being above the NMW/Living Wage we were devastated to learn in April of last year that our payroll process failed the NMW test on a technicality.

Poppies on Burscough Street, Ormskirk.

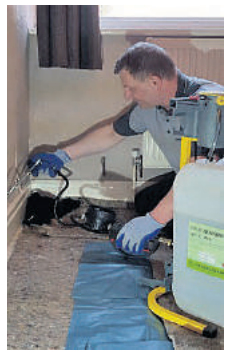
"We used to take a small deposit from our employees' first wage, which was later returned to them if and when they left our employment and returned the uniform that we provide. It is as a result of this deduction from the first month's wage that has caused some of our staff to earn less than the National Minimum Wage in their first month, even though in every subsequent month they would earn more.

"We were given 28 days to repay these deposits (with interest) to both our current and any ex staff who had been affected by this error – an exercise which was completed by August of last year, well ahead of the deadline.

"We join a growing list of respected employers who have inadvertently contravened a complex set of rules and apologise for any distress caused."

Your local waterproofing and damp specialists

Using advanced polymer technology, BKM Mannesmann has a unique way of solving waterproofing and damp problems to building materials which lets moisture escape but then keep moisture out for more than 30 -40 years or more.



Lucas, your North West Manager for BKM, says "Masonry materials are designed to breathe, so moisture must escape naturally. Existing damp treatment products on the market, such as Silicone derivatives of creams and pastes, can't penetrate building materials as effectively as the BKM products says Mr. Lucas.

The BKM process leaves a microscopically sized coating on the pores of the building materials, surface tension then "forces" the moisture out, leaving a dry and moisture free environment.

The process is fast developing across Europe as Surveyors and Architects realize the benefits of the product on stone, brick and lime mortars. "We only remove the salt damaged plaster" says Mr. Lucas, "not 1 meter up which our competitors do as this old process only keeps the damp in the walls" he commented.

A typical installation is clean, doesn't smell and can be done from the inside or outside of the building.

Work is usually completed in a day for a typical house, including any plasterwork and our team have extensive training by our qualified Technicians around the world. We pride ourselves on leaving a house cleaner than when we started!

Great British Care Award winners showing off their Caring Heroes badges

Skem-based care group set to salute 100 Caring Heroes

Report by Henry James

AN award-winning Skelmersdale-based care group is set to recognise more than 100 examples of great care, through its Caring Heroes campaign.

The initiative was created by the Springhill Care Group to thank those in the sector across the UK who go the extra mile to support the people they care for.

So far around 85 people - including staff, relatives and residents across the group and its three homes - have been named as Caring Heroes since the campaign began in 2016, and that number is expected to hit 100 heroes in the next few months.

Those who are named Caring Heroes are presented with a certificate and, since late last year, bespoke pin badges.

Recent ceremonies took place at Springhill Care Group's homes in Accrington, Skelmersdale and Bristol to present the badges which are intended to be worn around the homes and prompt discussion about the topic.

Since the campaign started, it has won the backing of industry leaders including Martin Green, chief executive of Care England and Alex Ramamurthy, chief executive of Care Workers Charity, along with a number of MPs.

Leading lights in the care sector were also recently presented with their own badges at a luncheon of award winners.

Donna Briggs, managing director of Springhill Care Group, attended a celebratory event with the regional winners of the Great British Care Award 'outstanding contribution to social care' title.

Donna was 'blown away' with the winners' stories of the outstanding contributions they make to the social care sector, and presented the badges in recognition of their achievements and to raise the profile of the campaign.

She said: "Caring Heroes started out as a way to highlight the great work being done - often behind the scenes - by care staff. It very quickly branched out to include residents themselves and their relatives, anyone who has gone the extra mile.

"The stories that we have had the honour to highlight are touching and inspiring, and we'd love for anybody in the care sector to engage with the campaign and share examples of great care.

"The news that the campaign will hit more than 100 people named as Caring Heroes shows just how much people care and the dedication shown by all in creating a caring and supportive environment."

Library to showcase exhibition of photos of old Liverpool

Display will bring back memories for townsfolk who moved here during regeneration of city centre

SKELMERSDALE library is set to showcase an exhibition of photographs of two areas of Liverpool that were demolished from the 1960s to the 1980s.

Running from Tuesday, March 27 until Thursday, April 12, the Lost Tribe of Everton and Scottie Road exhibition will feature photographs showing the old streets, and the changes that redevelopment made to the area.

More than 200,000 people were moved to live in other areas, including Skelmersdale, during the regeneration of the city.

Lancashire County Council's cabinet member for community and cultural services, County Councillor Peter Buckley, said: "I'm sure that the exhibition will revive memories for many people. It's appropriate for this exhibition to be shown at Skelmersdale library, as many people moved to the town from the area that was being redeveloped.

Above: One of the photographs that will be on display - Mitford Street then.
Below: Mitford Street now

Connection

"Hundreds of residents will have a strong connection to this area of Liverpool and I hope that many people visit the exhibition."

The exhibition will also be followed by a talk by Ken Rogers, author of two books - The Lost Tribe of Everton and Scottie Road and Lost Tribe – The People's Memories.

This will be held at the library in Southway from 7pm on Thursday, April 12 and is free to attend but tickets must be booked as places are limited.

For more information about the exhibition, or to book tickets for the talk telephone 0300 123 6703; email Skelmersdale.library@lancashire.gov.uk; or pop in to the library. Alternatively, visit www.lancashire.gov.uk/libraries.

Pupils hit the trail in Big Shakespeare Book Hunt

PUPILS at St John's Catholic Primary, Flamstead, Skelmersdale released the book Romeo and Juliet into the community on Monday, March 12 as part of the Big Shakespeare Book Hunt.

Billed as the biggest Shakespeare book hunt of all time to mark the launch of Shakespeare Week 2018, children are encouraged to seek and find the books that might turn up anywhere in their town.

If they do find a book, then it's their turn to read it and then set it free in a place of their choosing. Possible locations might include a bus shelter, a park bench or supermarket checkout.

Organised by the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust, in partnership with Walker Books and The Story Museum, 154 books, representing Shakespeare's 154 sonnets, were distributed to schools across the country, from the Channel Islands to the Orkneys, and everywhere in between.

The Shakespeare story books are written and illustrated by children's author and illustrator Marcia Williams and have been donated by Walker Books. They will be kept safe on their travels in transparent waterproof folders.

Families can follow the books' journeys on the Shakespeare Week twitter account @ShakespeareWeek using the hashtag #Shpassiton to try to track down the book in their area.

This March more than two million primary school children in half of the nation's primary schools will be celebrating Shakespeare's timeless stories and poetry as part of Shakespeare Week.

The free scheme for primary school children and their families is run by the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust, the independent charity that promotes the enjoyment and understanding of the Bard's works, life and times.

Encouraged

Emma Derome, literacy co-ordinator at St John's Catholic Primary, said: "We were pleased to take part in this scheme, which makes Shakespeare more accessible. Some of the young people may now be encouraged to study Shakespeare at secondary school."

Sally Gray, Shakespeare Week education officer at the Shakespeare Birthplace Trust, added: "This year's Shakespeare Week had a storytelling and poetry theme and we hope this initiative will enthuse children about the value of reading and sharing books - bringing schools, families and communities together as they join in the fun of an enormous Book Hunt and the joy of sharing books with each other."

Pupils from Skelmersdale's St John's Catholic Primary and teacher Emma Derome. The school was one of those chosen to take part in the Shakespeare project.

Giant crane will lift new A&E extension into place

Report by Danielle Thompson

A 60-foot crane will dominate the skyline at Southport Hospital this weekend when a new extension to the A&E department is lifted into place.

The crane will be lifting four ready-built modules into place to create an eight-bay extension on Saturday (March 24).

The modules will be lowered and assembled in an internal courtyard and then connected to the main hospital.

After fitting out, the extended A&E should start accepting its first patients by the end of April.

Steve Treadgold, head of estates and capital for the Southport and Ormskirk NHS Hospital Trust, said: "The crane weighs 96 tonnes and should be quite a sight.

"We are carrying this work out at a weekend to keep disruption to a minimum.

Upgrades

"Contractors will be setting up from 6am with the work expected to be complete by early afternoon. Traffic marshals will be on hand to direct motorists and visitors as necessary."

The extension is part of a £1.25m improvement project to create a better caring and working environment for patients and staff. Further A&E bays will be created in the main hospital building.

There will also be upgrades to the main waiting area, toilets for the disabled, the X-ray waiting room and the area for ambulance arrivals.

Therese Patten, the trust's chief operating officer, added: "This building work and investment programme forms part of our commitment to further improve the A&E department for our patients.

"The work will reduce overcrowding at the busiest times, improve the experience of care for patients, particularly their privacy, and provide a better environment for our staff."

An artist's impression shows a cut-away of the extension set in the courtyard next to A&E

College students' film project to promote town's Rewards app

Finished product will aim to encourage residents to adopt healthier lifestyles

STUDENTS from West Lancs College are embarking on a BBC Apprentice-style project to design and produce a short film which will be used across the town, to promote the Skelmersdale Rewards app to residents.

Skelmersdale Rewards is a scheme which utilises the (free to use on Android or iOS) BetterPoints app to track and reward walking, running and cycling of residents in Skelmersdale.

BetterPoints are earned and can then be exchanged for High Street vouchers or rewards, or donated back into the local or national charity organisations.

The programme is being supported by West Lancs Clinical Commissioning Group (CCG) and the Council for Voluntary Service (CVS).

On Thursday, March 22, students will be required to submit, and present, their finished film to a panel of representative 'judges' from each of the stakeholder organisations, along with a short interview on how they went about producing it.

The film will be aired on all major social media channels in addition to appearing on all key stakeholder websites once it's complete.

Neil Farrell, programme manager for Service Leisure & Creative Industries at West Lancashire College, said. "This project with BetterPoints has challenged students to use key employability skills such as, planning, team work and communication. Working collaboratively with employers like BetterPoints really enhances the students' experience."

Greg Mitten, chief officer of West Lancs CVS, added:"It's great to see the local community, West Lancs College and commissioners all working together to improve health and wellbeing in Skelmersdale.

"The talent and creativity of these young people will play a significant role in helping to promote the benefits of the BetterPoints scheme locally."

BetterPoints programme director, Hannah Bowden, is impressed with the work so far and said: "It's really exciting to be able to work with West Lancs College on this film to engage and explain to the local residents of Skelmersdale what BetterPoints is and how it can work with them to improve their health outlook, and at the same time earn a little something for themselves or the community in which they live.

"We are really excited to see the final films and use them as part of our marketing strategy in the area."

And West Lancs CCG's John Barbour, added: "This is a worthwhile project for the CCG to support. It's consistently shown that even small amounts of exercise can be beneficial for health.

"Sometimes people need that extra incentive to go for that extra walk or to exchange the bus or car for a bicycle. Rewarding people in this small way may be just what is needed to get people going."

Charity champ Hedley gears up for latest marathon challenge

Report by Henry James

A SKELMERSDALE man and his girlfriend have raised more than £3,000 for various charities by putting themselves through a number of different challenges.

Hedley Lawson, 66, and Shelly Hollywood, 44, have organised the events to collect funds for Cancer Research UK, Macmillan Nurses, When You Wish Upon A Star and the Deaf Cultural Centre, Birmingham.

Hedley was featured in the Champion last year when he climbed Ben Nevis, Scafell Pike and Snowdon in 29 hours - despite suffering from type 2 diabetes.

Last year he also cycled the entire length of the Leeds and Liverpool Canal both ways - a total of 254 miles - in 24 hours.

The plucky pensioner has also completed an Olympic-style triathalon swimming 1.5k (0.93 miles), cycling 40k (24.8 miles) and running 10k (6.2 miles).

Other challenges have seen him swim a marathon distance of 26 miles 385 yards between September 1 and September 30, and he has walked the entire length of the Leeds and Liverpool Canal one way calling for a pint in every pub along the towpath!

The couple are both now in training for the Manchester Marathon on Sunday, April 8.

Hedley said: "Shelly, who teaches at the Deaf Cultural Centre in Birmingham, is a great support, and without her there would have been no charity fundraiser. She has been brilliant helping me achieve my five challenges."

The couple have also organised a Northern Soul All Dayer on Saturday, March 31 from 2pm until late at Burscough Football Club.

There will be 18 DJs at the event, who are giving their time for nothing and the event has been organised in memory of Christine Naylor, a friend of Hedley.

And the challenges will culminate in a comedy night on Friday, April 27 from 8pm till late also at Burscough Football Club in memory of another friend of Hedley's who battled cancer, Charlie Hughes.

Kind-hearted family use 'snow break' to help out at local care home!

Report by Henry James

A SKELMERSDALE mum and her two children volunteered their services at a local care home during the recent snowy weather.

After the snow forced closures at several Skelmersdale schools on Thursday, March 8, the kind-hearted family members volunteered their services to local care home, Stocks Hall, Skelmersdale.

Joanne Wilde, office administrator at Westhead Lathom St James' CE Primary School and her two children, Daisy, aged seven and Dan, aged 13 who all live in Skelmersdale, approached the nearby home to see if they could help in anyway.

Joanne said: "We live nearby and I thought it would be a great opportunity for the young and old to come together.

"I thought it would be valuable experience for us all, providing the chance to spend time with people who typically have fascinating stories to tell about their long lives.

"It's been very special to see my children learning, having fun and finding friendship at the home."

The charitable trio helped out serving lunches and provided companionship and laughter throughout the afternoon to residents at the home.

Sue King, manager of Stocks Hall, Skelmersdale, said: "I'd like to say a big thank-you to Joanne and her wonderful children, Daisy and Dan, for offering this kind gesture to the home.

"They are inspirational, caring and kind people, we are so grateful. This is community spirit at it's best."

The Wilde family - Dan, Daisy and Joanne - with Sue king, manager of the Stocks Hall Skelmersdale Home

Dan, who attends Ormskirk School, said: "We have made some lovely friends and have learned about the use of memory boxes and reminiscing activities, a great history lesson."

And Daisy, who attends Brookfield Park Primary in Skelmersdale, commented: "It was lovely to sit and have lunch with the residents, we even enjoyed some yummy cheesecake for dessert, it was delicious."

Library opening times to change following public consultation

Report by Henry James

Ormskirk library

LANCASHIRE County Council's cabinet has agreed to recommendations on how libraries opening hours could be allocated across the week in future.

The proposals have been changed in response to the feedback received from library users and partner organisations during an eight-week consultation last year.

For Ormskirk library's opening hours, 22% of respondents said they would be able to use the library but it would be a lot more difficult, while 14% said they wouldn't be able to use the library. Key issues related to the opening hours on a Saturday and the opening hours not being suitable for full-time workers and pupils. The county council are therefore planning to change Thursday from a full day with late night opening to 1 to 7pm and reallocate these hours to provide a full day 9am to 5pm opening on Saturday.

One of the most commonly raised issues about Tarleton library's proposed opening times is that they would put an end to the craft and reading groups held on Thursday afternoons. As a result the council is planning that the weekday early closing is changed from Thursday to Friday.

Each library has been allocated to one of four different bands depending upon local need. These are: Band One: (including Skelmersdale Library) open for 50 hours over six days every week. Band Two: (including Ormskirk Library) open for 42 hours over six days every week. Band Three: (including Parbold, Tarleton & Burscough libraries) open for 34 hours over five days every week. Band Four: Open for 18 hours over four days every week.

The recommendations apply to the 47 libraries open at the start of the consultation period and not to the 11 that have reopened since. The recommendations should be implemented from July 1, following a period of staff consultation.

Pupils and staff from Burscough Village Primary School taking part in theuir Oriental-themed lesson event as part of their Chinese New Year celebration.

Youngsters enjoy a taste of Oriental culture and cuisine to celebrate Chinese New Year

PUPILS at a local primary school enjoyed a taste of the Orient when they celebrated Chinese New Year with a variety of cultural activities.

Children in the nursery and reception classes at Burscough Village Primary School took part in Chinese cooking, food tasting, calligraphy, and making Chinese lanterns; while pupils in Years One to Six experienced a range of activities such as story-telling, making Chinese dragons, solving Chinese maths problems and creating colourful tangrams.

Deputy headteacher, Helen Crowder, said: "The pupils always really enjoy our special celebration events and this week allowed all the pupils to experience Chinese culture and learn new skills."

Support networks set up for cancer sufferers in borough

Report by Henry James

CANCER support networks have been set up across West Lancashire with the aim of helping, guiding and supporting patients who have cancer or their carers.

Staff are on hand to give support and guidance on coping with cancer at the events organised by West Lancashire Macmillan Cancer Information and Support Service.

Monthly meetings are held in Parbold, Banks and Tarleton and on weekdays in Skelmersdale.

Out of the main 10 cancers found in people across England, people in West Lancashire are more likely to develop cancer in three of these areas, according to health data relating to 2008-10. These areas of prevalence are breast cancer, prostate cancer and skin cancer.

Macmillan points out cancer can affect all aspects of a person's life, not just their health and the team will be highlighting issues around the financial impact of the disease with many people faced with extra costs they hadn't considered.

Its research shows four in five people with cancer are £570 a month worse off as a result of their diagnosis, often due to being unable to work and having increased costs such as travel to hospital or increased fuel bills.

Caroline Flynn, Macmillan information and support service manager for West Lancashire, said: "It's really important that people living with cancer are able to access the financial advice and support they are entitled to so they can focus on what's most important, their health.

"We work closely with West Lancashire Citizens Advice, as well as a range of other organisations that can provide free and confidential advice.

Caroline Flynn, Macmillan information and support service manager for West Lancashire

"On the dates mentioned we're here at a variety of venues across West Lancashire to answer any questions about cancer. Whether people want to know what symptoms to look out for, need advice about managing the side effects of their treatment or want to find local support for carers, come along and see us. We are here to help you."

Elaine Deeming, lead cancer nurse, from Southport and Ormskirk Hospital NHS Trust, added: "This is a great service designed to provide help, guidance and support to patients from West Lancashire. We have already had a lot of positive feedback across the four areas on how invaluable the Macmillan team has been."

People unable to visit the centre or outreach services but who have questions about cancer can visit www.macmillan.org.uk or call Macmillan free on 0808 808 00 00, Monday to Friday, 9am to 8pm. Local Macmillan services are at www.macmillan.org.uk/in-your-area/choose-location.html.

Doddy's passing marks the demise of the age of 'genuine' comedy for me

THE tragic news of the death of Ken Dodd came after last week's columm had been submitted but I cannot let the passing of Liverpool's most loved comedian go without putting my own deep regret on paper.

For with his passing I honestly think we lost the best stand-up comic in the world, and the last of the genuinely funny men who could hold an audience spellbound for hours without resorting to filthy so-called jokes, taking cheap snipes at politicians (or anyone else) or hurting the feelings of any group of people.

He was a man whose humour appealed to anyone of any age, perhaps a man who never really grew up - and if so, was none the worse for that.

I had the privilege to meet and have lunch with Ken when I was still a young man. My mum won a Reader's Digest competition for £30,000, which was a lot in those days - which she didn't realise she had entered! - and Ken presented her with her cheque at a lunch at Liverpool's Atlantic Towers Hotel.

And in person he was a charming and witty host and my dad - already a Doddy fan - had a couple of the best hours of his life, I think.

I cannot better the shower of compliments and Doddy anecdotes that filled our airwaves and newspapers after his death. But of this I am certain, with his demise the age of comedy as I construe it has passed and can never be replaced.

Two other comedians who marked my life were of the same cut, Tommy Cooper and Norman Wisdom. If you need proof, tune in to one of the various comedy channels on Freeview and you'll find repeats of their performances, if not every day, certainly every week. And I cannot think of any one of the present crop of so-called comedians likely to be in that position in say 20 years time.

Actually of course, it might be a little more difficult to find Ken Dodd on TV, because television was not a medium of which he was particularly keen. Hopefully though we will have sufficient footage from his memorable theatre appearances and his one-man shows, which almost without exception overran their schedules (not good for TV!).

And perhaps uniquely amongst successful entertainers, Doddy never left his beloved home of Liverpool - though I reckon Blackpool ran it a close second when it came to live theatre performances.

Cast in the same mould of course are the great comedy duos, Morecambe and Wise and the Two Ronnies. They are still as popular today as they were in their heydays, and, just like Ken Dodd, neither relied on vulgarity or bullying to be funny.

Of course, none of the real greats tried to use their popularity for political ends either, another reason perhaps why they appealed to persons of any so-called class.

They were all funny in their own right. They didn't rely on schoolboy smuttiness or a barrage of four-letter words to get a laugh. They all honed their skills and learned to read their audiences and hold them in the palms of their hands. Often just a look could be good enough to bring the house down.

If there was one thing I think set the seal on the performances of people like them, it could be distilled into the title of Doddy's 'theme song', Happiness. For that's what Ken Dodd - and Tommy Cooper and Norman Wisdom - did for me, brought me happiness and (courtesy of Eric and Ernie) sunshine too!

Pet store's four-figure boost for animal charity

A WEST Lancashire-based animal charity has been given a four-figure boost - thanks to big-hearted pet lovers.

Jo Holmes, deputy manager of Pets At Home in Southport, presented a cheque for £3,135 to staff at the Woodlands Animal Sanctuary in Holmeswood.

This was the sum of the funds the store raised with the support of their customers in the run-up to Christmas through their Buy a Christmas Dinner for A Shelter Animal appeal.

The money will go towards the costs of food, heating and lighting at the shelter.

Liz Gould from the charity said: "We would like to thank John Gannon the store manager, his staff and their customers at Southport Pets At Home who have been amazing in raising this amount and assure them that the money will be well spent looking after and rehabilitating the animals in the sanctuary's care.

"Over the winter, heating and food bills can increase for animals and so such a substantial amount will really help the charity cope with these extra winter bills.

"Where possible, we like to work with local businesses, schools and voluntary groups as part of our outreach programme to help educate and inform people about how they too can help animals in their local area.

Grateful

"We have been charity partners with the Southport Pets at Home store for a number of years and regularly take some of our animals to the store as part of our education and outreach programme.

"We are especially grateful to the staff and customers for the fantastic amount of money raised from the Christmas appeal which will make a real difference to our animals."

Health chiefs welcome increase in children taking up flu vaccinations

THE SCREENING and Immunisation Team at NHS England, Lancashire and South Cumbria says it is delighted with increases in the number of flu vaccinations given to children this winter.

For the 2017/18 flu season, more than 52,000 children in Lancashire aged between four and nine years old received their flu vaccination.

That included 63% of children aged between four and five years old, a 29% increase from the previous flu season.

It also included 56.9% of seven and eight-year-olds and 60.3% of six and seven-year-olds, increases from 47.4% and 50.2% respectively.

Dr Kieran Murphy, Medical Director, Lancashire & South Cumbria said: "It's great news that so many took up the offer to have their children vaccinated this flu season. The vaccination helps not only the child, but their friends and family by decreasing the risk of spreading the flu.

Offered

"All too often we hear about those most vulnerable, including young children, being extremely poorly with flu and related health complications.

"This winter has seen unprecedented pressures on the NHS and by having your child vaccinated against flu you can help to reduce the spread and decrease the amount of people requiring hospital treatment for health conditions relating to flu.

"The children's flu vaccination is given as a quick, and pain-free, nasal spray. Please take up the offer when it comes around during autumn this year."

The flu vaccine was offered to all children aged two and three on August 31 of last year, along with children in reception class and school years one to four.

Children aged between two and 17 with long-term health conditions were also offered the jab, along with those aged between six months and two years who are at high risk from flu. Over the next few years the programme will gradually be extended to include all older children.

School puts on the style for World Book Day

IMAGINATIVE youngsters – and staff - at a West Lancs primary school dressed up as a wide range of characters as part of a week of fun activities to mark World Book Day.

Pupils at Tarleton Holy Trinity CE Primary on Church Road enjoyed fun sessions including reading with family members and dressing up.

Headteacher, Stephen Smith, said: "I was amazed at the range of outfits and costumes - from Mr Twit to Angelina Ballerina, from the Cat in the Hat to Jack Sparrow and from Mary Poppins to Gangster Granny, the children and staff looked fabulous!"

Champion LETTERS to the Editor

Changes to garden waste service just mean more confusion and more unsightly bins!

I WOULD like to respond to two articles printed in the Champion (March 7).

The first is on Page 15 by Councillor Kevin Wilkie regarding the introduction of yet another wheelie bin, and changes to our garden waste collections.

He states a new scheme is being put in operation from March 12 to introduce a BROWN wheelie bin. This is now going to be for our garden waste!

What is wrong with leaving the GREEN bin for garden waste, which is green? These bins have been used for garden waste for years, is it not going to be more confusing to now use a BROWN bin.

Cardboard is mainly brown so it makes more sense to me to put cardboard and paper in the brown bins.

To change the green bins use is as daft as asking us to swap our waste into the BLUE bins and use the GREY bins for plastic, tins and bottles! Where does he expect us to store these new bins?

There was a time when you could walk down the street and see neat garden fronts and the occasional garden gnome with a cheeky face among the flowers which made you smile. Now all you see is rows of unsightly ugly wheelie bins. I know which I would rather see.

Is this the only way the council can get rid of their recycled plastic? What colour bin will they come up with next?

The second article I wish to mention is on Page 16, a letter from a lady in Rufford who witnessed on collection day, her carefully separated paper/cardboards being tipped into the wheelie bin then emptied into the truck.

She also asked if there was a process to re-separate them when they reached their destination. I would think not.

If everything we carefully separated ends up in a landfill site then why are we being made to recycle?

Could anyone enlighten us as to what exactly happens to our recycling waste?

Mrs V. Salkeld, by email

This smacks of tinkering just for the sake of it!

I READ with interest the article on Page 15 of the Champion (March 7) re: changes to the garden waste service and would like to make my feelings known.

Firstly, I fully support the council in wanting to swap the current box and bag system for recycling paper and cardboard. In my own personal case, it will mean fewer trips to the tip as a bin will accommodate more paper and cardboard. Also, placing the paper and cardboard in a bin with a secure lid should prevent rubbish from blowing around on the streets in the event of bad weather.

What I find baffling however is the idea that the existing green bins will now be used for the cardboard and paper, with the new brown bin being used for green waste. Why?

This smacks of tinkering for no good reason. What's wrong with keeping the existing green bins for 'green' waste and the new brown bins for cardboard and paper? Perhaps it is a potential ploy to raise even more money from cash-strapped residents as I see that some will have to pay?

Have the council also considered that the green bins, however clean they may be, are still likely to be contaminated with green waste, so when cardboard and paper are placed in them, there is a chance that they will not be accepted for recycling at the recycling plant owing to cross-contamination?

Carolyn Jassi, Rufford

PICTURE of the week

Archie the Bengal Eagle Owl from Stockley Farm Birds of Prey Centre poses for a momento of his visit to Lydiate St Thomas' CE Primary School. Picture by Martyn Snape.

Bins will outnumber beings at this rate!

AFTER the furore surrounding the new green waste collection charge, we now have the introduction of brown bins for green waste and green bins for paper and card.

Whose bright idea was that? Why couldn't brown bins for paper/card be given out to those who want one?

The answer is probably that, heaven forbid, people might decide not to have one. So instead, the council want to coerce residents into having bins they don't want.

Along with the question of how much this policy is costing, another is how much energy goes into the production and delivery of the bins compared to environmental benefits of recycling paper and card?

The whole thing is a fiasco with most houses having to find space for four different coloured bins and if you currently have two green bins, you can look forward to looking after six in total.

If aliens come to have a look at the beings of Earth later this year, they would be forgiven for thinking that the majority of 'beings' in this part of the planet are called 'bins' for short, as they will surely outnumber the human residents.

Efforts to report traffic problem to highways department in vain

ON Tuesday afternoon (March 13) I drove out of Morrisons Car Park to find the town centre gridlocked.

The traffic lights at the junction of Aughton Street and Park Road were stuck on green for Park Road, causing extreme traffic congestion going right back along Aughton Street to the fire station roundabout.

This in turn blocked traffic on County Road.

Being a good-spirited citizen, I felt I must report this problem.

Dial 999?Not really an emergency. Dial 101? Likelihood of long wait (plus the 15p call charge).

No, I'll ring Lancashire Highways, after all it's their responsibility.

First, a multi-choice selection for which department I need to speak to, then a lengthy recorded message telling me it was easier to report faults on-line.

By now I was out of Ormskirk and had lost interest in speaking to anyone. I'm sorry for the people who were held up, but I did try!

For those who are concerned, my passenger made the calls.

Beware of funeral plans that are not quite what they seem

MAY I, through your columns, draw your readers' attentions to a couple of issues that I recently experienced?

Four years ago I helped my elderly sister to buy a funeral plan. The process was quite straightforward, a simple form to complete giving my sister's personal information, together with her preferences and individual requirements (church burial/cremation, flowers, hymns etc.).

My sister sent off her cheque in full payment and she received confirmation from the funeral plan provider. Everything sorted - peace of mind.

However, when my sister passed away earlier this year things did not go strictly according to 'plan'.

Firstly, my understanding was that with having a funeral plan in place I could now simply contact my preferred funeral director who would take care of the arrangements. Unfortunately this was not the case.

It seems that the funeral plan that my sister had purchased could only be 'redeemed' with a funeral director who belongs to a specific 'cartel'. So although I was treated with courtesy and understanding, my preferred funeral director redirected me to another company who could honour the funeral plan that my sister had purchased.

Another surprise came when the second funeral director advised me that my sister's funeral plan only offered a 'contribution' towards her arrangements and that there were likely to be additional costs.

These two unexpected situations were not down to the small print, but were in fact due to: 1) my making assumptions about my choice of funeral director; and 2) the very carefully worded information in the funeral plan brochure - "the plans guarantee to cover the funeral director's costs in full" is quite accurate.

But I have now learned that the plan did not cover funeral directors' incurred expenses - which can be considerable.

Needless to say, the family ensured that my sister's arrangements were fulfilled according to her wishes, but I would advise anyone who may have purchased a funeral plan that it may be prudent to review exactly what costs, charges and expenses will be covered.

How can council tax rise be justified while handing out new bins?

HOW can the council justify the 5.65% increase in the council tax when they are about to introduce another wheelie bin to the householders of West Lancs?

Why are we getting a brown bin to collect green waste and a brown bin to collect cardboard which in the main is brown? But any way if we have to have a new bin why not leave green bins green and the new bin for the cardboard?

It must be costing a packet to introduce the new bin, but that should not cost us 5.65% increase on our tax, and where are we going to store another wheelie bin?

David Jones, Skelmersdale

What a waste of money!

WHO on Earth concocted this plan for the waste collection service?

So we will now put green waste in new brown bins, cardboard and paper will be in the existing green bins.

Residents with two green bins will receive two brown bins so they will then have six bins. Surely this is wasting money?

Babs Houghton, Newburgh

Search for new magistrates launched

A RECRUITMENT process to appoint new magistrates to serve local communities within Lancashire is now underway.

As it looks for volunteers to help administer justice in the county, Lancashire's Advisory Committee says that magistrates come from a wide variety of backgrounds, ethnicity, age and gender and that there is no requirement to be legally qualified or to hold any academic qualification.

However, qualities sought include sound judgment, good communication skills and sound temperament.

Anyone who lives in Lancashire is eligible to serve as a magistrate. You must be a minimum of 18 years old to apply. Magistrates retire from the bench at the age of 70 and the Lord Chancellor normally expects a period of five years service before retirement.

If you feel that you can make a contribution to the administration of justice within the Lancashire area, you can obtain further information from Mrs April Kilpatrick at the Lancashire Advisory Committee (lancs.advisorycommittee@justice.gov.uk). Details on how to apply can be found at www.gov.uk/become-magistrate/what-magistrates-do.

Council offers helping hand to community clean-up volunteers

Report by Henry James

WEST Lancs Council has said it is still making help available to residents who want to take part in the Great British Spring Clean.

The Keep Britain Tidy Group has also extended the 2018 Great British Spring Clean campaign to Sunday, March 25 to inspire hundreds of thousands of people to participate in community clean-ups.

Community groups and local residents who postponed or were put off having such activities due to the threat of adverse weather can still ask the council for resources such as bin bags and litter pickers.

Interested parties should contact Michelle Williams, the council's Street Scene operations manager, on 01695 577177 ext 5449 or by email michelle.williams@westlancs.gov.uk.

The council's environmental enforcement officers will also be out supporting community events.

The Parks and Countryside Service organised a clean-up of Tawd Valley Park on Saturday, March 17.

This event was run in conjunction with the Friends of Tawd Valley Park as their inaugural practical activity.

The Rangers are also encouraging and supporting parish councils and residents across the borough to organise their own events in their area.

Councillor Ian Moran, leader of West Lancashire Borough Council, said: "A key priority in the Council Plan is to be ambitious for our environment and its cleanliness. Working together can make a real contribution in tackling litter issues and improving the quality of the environment."

For more information about volunteering opportunities with the Parks and Countryside Ranger Service email beacon.park@westlancs.gov.uk or phone 01695 622794. Please note that they can only accept volunteers aged 18 years and upwards.

Bands join forces to drum up funds for cancer charity

Report by Kenny Parker

A 60s ROCK band from Ormskirk has teamed up with a Merseyside-based band and a leading cancer charity to organise fundraising concerts, the first of which will be at St George's Social Centre, Station Road, Maghull, on Friday, March 23.

The Rebels have been playing along with other local bands at six-monthly concerts in aid of cancer charities since 2010.

They have now partnered with Rockin' Relics and Cancer Research to form Gig4Life.

The Rebels first formed in the 1960s and three of the present line-up are original members - including Keith Hubbard and Roy Smith who also played with 1970s chart-toppers Chicory Tip.

The Rockin' Relics, which has previously organised concerts at Maghull in aid of cancer charities, are a six-piece outfit.

Member and one of the event organisers, Roy Montrosel, was the vocalist of some of the early 1960s Liverpool bands including The Phoenix Five, The Midnights and The Koobas.

The groups will be joined for the March 23 gig by Searchin', a Merseybeat and 60s-themed five-piece live covers band from Liverpool.

The event starts at 8pm and tickets are £3 on the door, with all proceeds going to Cancer Research.

Roy Montrose says that the new collaboration Gig4Life aims to amalgamate the two separate fundraising efforts that he and Keith Hubbard had been leading in Liverpool and Lancashire.

He says that their local concerts will continue but that it is hoped bigger events will be organised throughout the year. "It's a new concept and very exciting for all concerned."

Forces team up to raise awareness of drug gangs exploiting young and vulnerable

Report by Henry James

LANCASHIRE Constabulary has partnered with the North West Regional Organised Crime Unit (Titan) to publicise the issue of 'county lines' where criminal gangs use a dedicated mobile phone line and exploit young and vulnerable people as drugs runners to co-ordinate illegal dealing in towns many miles away.

A launch event used actors to demonstrate a county lines scenario between a young drugs runner, their concerned parent, and a gang member. The aim was to help members of the public to understand how victims get involved and how to spot the signs that someone needs help.

Drugs runners are often young or vulnerable people who have been recruited using intimidation, deception, violence, debt bondage, or grooming. During the grooming process the victims are likely to commit criminal offences. Drugs runners are often deployed to market and coastal towns many miles away from their home by senior gang members who tend to stay at their urban base looking after the drugs line and co-ordinating activity.

Young recruits are usually teenagers but can be as young as 10 and also vulnerable adults including drug users, alcoholics, or those with mental health problems or learning difficulties. They travel on their own on the rail network and risk their health by carrying drugs internally. Gang members often use intimidation, violence, and weapons, including knives, corrosives, and firearms, making it difficult for their victims to get out of the situation.

County lines criminality is a problem throughout the country and has been around for many years. There are now instances coming into Lancashire, particularly from Manchester, Liverpool, London, and West Yorkshire. The nature of county lines activity means it crosses police boundaries and Lancashire Constabulary along with other forces throughout the North West and the country are working collaboratively to disrupt these organised crime networks.

The aim of the campaign is to raise awareness among members of the public to help individuals to spot the signs and encourage them to report any concerns in confidence through the CrimeStoppers anonymous line: 0800 555 111.

Assistant Chief Constable Alan Barr, head of Titan, said: "The issue of county lines is becoming widespread across the region and further afield and by working alongside all communities, forces, and partners we want to educate parents, teachers, carers, and mental health professionals about how to identify some of the warning signs that vulnerable young people and adults are being used to deliver drugs and the ways you can report it to relevant agencies."

Andrew Webster, temporary Detective Chief Superintendent at Lancashire Constabulary, commented: "Criminal gangs will exploit vulnerability in all of its forms to aid their activities. We can only combat this if members of the public understand what criminal exploitation is, how to spot the signs, and what to do if they think a person they know is being exploited."

And Clive Grunshaw, Lancashire's Police and Crime Commissioner, added: "Stopping criminal gangs who use young and vulnerable people, involving them in criminality which crosses into the county from elsewhere is a problem which we continue to see, with officers working harder than ever to stop them blighting our communities."

Primary pupils brave the icy weather to enjoy a history lesson with a difference...

PRIMARY school children enjoyed a history lesson with a difference when they were treated to an interactive war-themed concert and informative talk about war horses.

The Pied Piper day was hosted by Parbold Douglas Music at Parbold Village Hall.

Dot Hawkes from Lathom Park Trust taught the children about Lathom Park Remount Depot, where men were trained to use horses during the First World War, while folk musicians Mark Dowding and Derek Gifford sang themed songs that the children had been learning at school.

Eight primary schools were originally due to attend the event but due to bad weather only two made it - Our Lady and All Saints Catholic Primary School, Parbold, and SS Peter & Paul Catholic Primary School, Mawdesley.

Lathom Park Trust patron, Lord Derby, donated a raffle prize of a family pass to his Knowsley Safari Park, which was won by Rosalind Williams of Our Lady and All Saints. And WH Smith provided £500 worth of book vouchers to be divided between the schools. Each school also received a signed copy of the Michael Morpurgo War Horse novel.

Musicians Mark Dowding and Derek Gifford, Dot Hawkes from Lathom Park Trust and pupils from Our Lady and All Saints who took part in the Pied Piper War Horse interactive concert at Parbold Village Hall.

Northern Rail to face more strike action in ongoing guards dispute

Report by Henry James

Passengers on Northern Rail face more disruption with further strikes planned

RAIL Union RMT has confirmed a further 48 hours of strike action on Northern Rail, which operates the Southport to Manchester service through West Lancashire.

The walk-outs will take place on Monday, March 26 and Thursday, March 29.

RMT has said the stoppages are over the "safety-critical guard" and the extension of Driver Only Operation "in the name of increased profits".

The strikes will run for 24 hours on both days.

The union is also calling tripartite talks with the company and the Department for transport (DfT) aimed at reaching a solution to the long-running dispute.

RMT general secretary, Mick Cash, said: "Every single effort that RMT has made to reach a negotiated settlement with Northern Rail over safe operation and safe staffing has been kicked back in our faces. No one should be in any doubt, this dispute is about putting the safety of the travelling public before the profits of the private train companies

"It is frankly ludicrous that we have been able to negotiate long-term arrangements in Scotland and Wales that protect the guards and passenger safety but we are being denied the same opportunities with rail companies in England.

"Theresa May and Chris Grayling are happy to stand aside and cheer on overseas rail companies that rip-off the British passenger with eye-watering fare increases to subsidise their domestic transport operations while throwing the guards off our trains. If it's good enough for Wales and Scotland to put safety first then it's good enough for the rest of the UK.

"RMT remains ready for the tripartite talks we have suggested."

A spokesman for Northern said: "On strike days Northern is only able to operate a limited service.

"For example, on weekday strikes, the majority of available trains typically operate between 7am and 7pm, with many last trains leaving before 7pm.

"During these hours, the overall number of trains running are significantly reduced, with around 50 per cent of the usual number of services in operation. These trains, and any replacement buses we run, are usually very busy. Therefore we ask our customers to carefully consider whether their journey is necessary."

MP launches new paper cup recycling scheme

WEST Lancs MP Rosie Cooper joined officials of the Alliance for Beverage Cartons and the Environment (ACE UK) to officially launch a new recycling service for plastic-lined paper cups in Burscough.

Since January residents have been able to recycle their used cups alongside food and drink cartons at specialist bring banks located at Burscough Household Waste Recycling Centre in Abbey Lane.

The bring banks accept polyethylene-lined paper cups which are used for hot drinks such as tea and coffee in High Street coffee shops, fast food outlets and supermarkets.

The new service is the result of an agreement between ACE UK, which operates the dedicated food and drink carton recycling service available in Burscough, and High Street retailers and cup manufacturers.

The agreement was set up to give people access to recycling for paper cups through the carton bring bank service. Cups are made from similar materials to food and drink cartons and will be recycled using the same process, at ACE UK's recycling facility in Halifax.

Rosie Cooper said: "Previously coffee cups could not be recycled through council waste collections but with their growing use it was imperative to take the opportunity to include them.

"West Lancashire residents have always responded well to different recycling schemes implemented, and I hope that they will take full advantage of this new service."

Joining Ms Cooper at the launch was Wouter van Tol, head of corporate responsibility at global packaging specialists, Huhtamaki, members of the paper cup alliance and funders of the recycling scheme. Mr van Tol commented: "Contrary to perception, coffee cups can be recycled and are a hygienic and sustainable solution for on-the-go consumption. We thank Rosie Cooper for her help as we look to promote the growth of recycling services for paper cups."

Parkrun stages its own ladies' day to mark 100 years of votes for women

ORMSKIRK'S Parkrun was 'taken over' for the day by women to celebrate 100 years of women gaining the right to vote.

All of the volunteer roles at the weekly community running event, held at Edge Hill University, were undertaken by women, with many of them dressing up in the kind of costumes that would have been worn by the suffragettes in 1918.

There was also a re-enactment of one of the tragedies related to the suffragettes' struggle, when Emily Davidson was killed after walking in front of King George V's horse at the 1913 Epsom Derby.

Report by Kenny Parker

The parkrun takeover was part of the Wonder Women programme being undertaken by Edge Hill, a series of events to commemorate Parliament's passing of the Representation of People Act in February 1918.

Although the act did not give the vote to all women, only those over the age of 30 who occupied a house (or were married to someone who did), the new legislation was a significant step towards full suffrage. Previously women had no voting rights at all.

The act also extended voting rights to all men over the age of 21 and men in the armed forces over the age of 19. Previously, only men who owned property were entitled to vote.

Margaret Ellams, Parkrun participant and member of the Edge Hill Wonder Women team, said: "It was a great morning and a reminder of how much we have to thank the suffragists and suffragettes for their work on enabling women to gain the vote."

Women took over the volunteer roles at Ormskirk's Parkrun event to commemorate 100 years since the vote was granted to women. They also re-enacted the fatal incident at the 1913 Epsom Derby involving Emily Davidson.

New support service for breastfeeding mothers

LANCASHIRE County Council is teaming up the Families and Babies organisation (FAB) to deliver a new county-wide breastfeeding support service from April 1.

Peer support will be offered to new mums who want to breastfeed in hospital, at home and in the community.

The service will provide bedside support on maternity wards, home visits and a phone and text message advice, as well as training for people who want to become peer support volunteers.

It also includes a scheme to sign up more shops, cafes and other community venues as breastfeeding friendly places.

County Councillor Shaun Turner

County Councillor Shaun Turner, Lancashire's cabinet member for health and wellbeing, said: "Research has shown how important breastfeeding is for the health of mothers and their children. Our peer support service helps to develop a supportive infant feeding community where mothers can breastfeed for as long as they wish.

"The peer support, along with the infant feeding support service at our children's centres, which was accredited with UNICEF Baby Friendly status last year, are a key part of our plans to encourage more mums to breastfeed."

Dr Sakthi Karunanithi, the county council's director of public health, commented: "Breastfeeding boosts a child's immune system, so breastfed babies are far less likely to suffer gastroenteritis or respiratory conditions. Breastfeeding also improves the bond between mothers and their child and can help children and mothers to maintain a healthy weight.

"Mothers who breastfeed have improved mental health and a lower risk of developing some cancers. It's crucial that mums who want to breastfeed get good support at hospital in the first few days of a child's life and that this continues when they go home.

"It's also important to ensure there are places where mums feel comfortable breastfeeding when they're out and about. The FAB peer support service will help new mums and their children enjoy these health benefits and is a crucial part of our plans to provide infant feeding support and ensure children have a healthy start to life."

Elaine Edwards, chair of FAB, said: "Provision will focus upon early support principles with contact from peer support being offered within the first 48 hours after birth, with home visits being available after the initial midwifery visit."

And Marie Longworth, Operations Manager of FAB, added: "We know how effective peer support can be alongside health professionals. It is our aim to support mothers with breastfeeding from the birth of their child through to six or eight weeks in a variety of ways."

Care trust shortlisted for efficiency and improvement awards

Report by Kenny Parker

LANCASHIRE Care NHS Foundation Trust has been shortlisted in three categories at the prestigious Health Service Journal Value in Healthcare Awards.

The awards recognise and reward outstanding efficiency and improvement by NHS service providers.

The first accolade the trust has been nominated for is the 'Mental Health' award because of its work in enhancing acute mental health care pathways.

A recent initiative involved the introduction of a range of options for treatment for patients, including specialist short-term inpatient assessments, crisis houses and intensive psychological therapies, which do not necessitate admission to hospital.

Phil Horner, Deputy Head of Operations for the Mental Health Network, said: "We are really pleased to be able to offer people in Lancashire a broader range of treatment options when they need specialist mental health care. Whilst many patients undoubtedly benefit from admission to hospital, there are also a number of patients who prefer to access our intensive community support schemes. We have found both patient satisfaction and clinical outcomes to be excellent, and as consequence of our new services our reliance on out of area placements has significantly reduced."

Phil Horner, Deputy Head of Operations for the Mental Health Network.

The second award for which the trust has been shortlisted is for 'Improving the value of NHS support services.' This is because of its commitment to patient safety. The organisation has created a team of specialised serious incident investigators to learn why an incident occurred in order to prevent it happening again, or to minimise the likelihood of a recurrence.

Simon Pierce, Head of Investigations and Learning, said: "This is a fantastic achievement for a team of people who have transformed the way we investigate and learn from serious incidents in little over a year. They have changed for the better the experiences of staff, service users, their families and everyone who is affected by an incident."

Last but not least the trust's pharmacy team has been shortlisted in the 'Training and Development' category, for their work in developing an in-house virtual learning community for mental health pharmacists enabling them to share knowledge in order to improve care.

Lisa Ainsworth, Medicines Management Education and Training Lead, said: "We are delighted to have been recognised nationally for our work in developing this system. The creation of the Virtual Learning Environment has allowed for the sharing of clinical expertise within the team which ultimately leads to improved patient care and experience for those accessing our services!"

Winners will be announced at the awards ceremony on Thursday, June 7 at Manchester Central.

ELM HOUSE CARE HOME

Skem charity supporter is new High Sheriff of Lancashire

A BENEFACTOR of the Sewing Rooms in Skelmersdale has been named the new High Sheriff of Lancashire.

Anthony Attard - known as Tony - will be sworn in at a special ceremony on Friday, April 6, when he takes over the office from Robert Mitchel Webb.

Originally from Poole in Dorset, Tony made what proved to be a permanent move north when he went to university in Manchester.

It was while studying there that he witnessed the large Woolworths fire in 1979, where 10 people lost their lives. The tragedy had a lasting effect on him and he went on to start his own company designing and creating flame-retardant fabrics for international commercial interiors, and exports to more than 50 countries.

He is now the chief executive of East Lancashire-based Panaz and chair of Marketing Lancashire.

Personally appointed by The Queen each year, the role of High Sheriff of Lancashire dates back more than 1,000 years.

Tony said: "To become High Sheriff of Lancashire is a great honour and one that I will always hold very dear. This historical privilege is a great and ancient tradition and to follow in the footsteps of so many great Lancastrians is quite a daunting prospect.

"I will do my utmost to carry on the excellent work my immediate past sheriffs have achieved and uphold the objectives of the position."

Right: The new High Sheriff of Lancashire, Anthony Attard

Peter pens book on spooky encounters - with a little help from the Champion!

A NEW book exploring paranormal experiences across Britain – including sightings on Halsall Moss – has been published, thanks to a little help from the Champion!

Former clinical psychologist turned phenomena investigator Peter McCue, from Glasgow, has released Paranormal Encounters on Britain's Roads, which reflects on the enormous range of otherworldly experiences reported along the country's roads and examines the theory that certain areas are 'hotspots' for such happenings.

The Champion revealed in October 2016 that a retired doctor, Rob Gandy, had spent more that 50 years investigating ghostly sightings on Halsall Moss. His spooky story was first published in the Fortean Times winter issue in 1990, an independent publication which explores 'unique phenomena' including far-out theories and beliefs.

He then ran an appeal in the Champion for those who had experienced similar sightings to contact him, which proved very successful.

Report by Danielle Thompson

Last year, Peter McCue, asked us for Rob Gandy's contact details and he delved into Dr Gandy's findings for his new book.

Mr McCue said: "Thanks to the Champion I was able to delve into Mr Gandy's findings on the Halsall Moss, which were very intriguing.

"In the book, which covers sightings across the width and length of the UK, I focus on sightings of apparitional vehicles; encounters with 'colliding apparitions'; 'phantom hitch-hikers'; out-of-place big cats; phantom black dogs; 'missing time' (strange memory gaps); vehicle interferences (such as mysterious breakdowns); and incidents in which drivers and passengers seem to have been translocated in space or time.

"I debate the evidence and theories in a critical but open-minded way."

Paranormal Encounters on Britain's Roads can be bought at amazon.com and thehistorypress.co.uk.

Pupils from Maricourt Catholic High enjoying a Chinese themed event at Edge Hill University.

University hosts Chinese cultural exhibition

EDGE Hill Universty's Confucius Institute gave pupils from Maricourt Catholic High School in Maghull, a taste of the Orient as part of its Chinese New Year celebrations.

Pupils were given the chance to take part in a host of Chinese cultural traditions, including costume, tea drinking, calligraphy, lantern making, food and delicacies followed by a session of Qigong, a type of health exercise, which has been practiced for centuries by millions of Chinese people.

Search for raffle millionaire

OFFICIALS of the National Lottery are hunting for a Lotto Millionaire Raffle winner.

Every week Lotto Millionaire Raffle guarantees to create two millionaires – one on Wednesday and one on Saturday. However, the lucky winner from the Lotto draw on Wednesday, February 28 has still to claim their prize.

The search is now on to find the owner of the winning ticket which was bought in Wigan. For every Lotto line played, players automatically receive a Lotto Millionaire Raffle code printed on their ticket.

The winning code on February 28 2018 was PLUM 1592 1867 and the lucky ticket-holder has until August 27, 2018 to claim their prize.

Anyone not in possession of their ticket, for whatever reason, but who believes they have a genuine claim can still make a claim in writing to Camelot, but it must be within 30 days of the draw.

If no-one comes forward with the winning ticket before the prize claim deadline, then the prize money, plus all the interest it has generated, will go to help National Lottery-funded projects across the UK.

Andy Carter, Senior Winners' advisor at The National Lottery, said: "We're eager to find the mystery ticket-holder and unite them with their winnings – this amazing prize could really make a huge difference to somebody's life. We're urging everyone who bought a Lotto ticket in this area to check their old tickets again or look anywhere a missing ticket could be hiding."

With all National Lottery draws, players have 180 days from the day of the draw to claim their prize if they have the winning ticket. Anyone who has any queries or who believes they have the winning ticket for any of the National Lottery draws within the 180-day deadline should call the National Lottery Line on 0333 234 5050 or email help@national-lottery.co.uk.

Champion ENTERTAINMENT

Some of the characters from Cartoon Circus Live

Fun of circus at town venue

ALL the fun of the circus comes to Ormskirk Civic Hall on Wednesday, March 28 at 2pm when the all new, interactive, laughter-packed stage show Cartoon Circus Live combines the comedy of pantomime with the thrill of the circus.

The 80 minute Easter Holiday show features some of Britain's funniest clowns, traditional slapstick comedy, magic, illusions, balancing, high flying diabolos, cartoon characters, plate spinning, an acrobatic human slinky, puppets, prizes and surprises. There is even a performing piranha.

For tickets call 01384 423496.

International artists coming to Parbold

PARBOLD Douglas Music is to present two international artists: violinist, Alina Ibragimova and pianist, Cédric Tiberghien performing music by Johannes Brahms in the Auditorium in the Village Hall on Saturday, April 7 at 7.45 p.m.

Following Alina's astounding solo violin playing for Parbold Douglas Music in 2013, Alina returns to Parbold with pianist, Cédric Tiberghien. Her duo partnership with pianist Cédric has created highly successful recordings of complete cycles of music for violin and piano by Beethoven, Brahms and Mozart. The Times's reaction to their very first concert together was that "Both of these players have the potential to conquer the world".

Alina Ibragimova has established a global reputation as one of the most accomplished violinists of her generation. Alina became famous aged 12, playing the Bach double violin concerto with Nicola Benedetti at UNESCO celebrations in Paris. Alina started her studies in Moscow but has been based in Britain since 1996. She appeared on five occasions in the 2015 BBC Proms, including two solo concerts, alone on the stage of The Albert Hall, London, in front of capacity audiences of 6,000. Alina's awards include the Classical BRIT Young Performer of the Year Award 2009. She was made an MBE for services to music in the 2016 New Year Honours List.

Cédric Tiberghien has established an international career that spans five continents performing in some of the world's most prestigious concert halls. He has been particularly applauded for his versatility, his wide-ranging repertoire, an openness to explore innovative concert formats.

Seasonal Street Scene Operative x 3
(fixed term post from April 2018 – September 2018)
£16,781 - £17,772 per annum, pro rata. Scale 3.
Would you like to contribute to the local community and make a difference to the local area? If so, we would like to hear from you.
We currently have an exciting opportunity for three Seasonal Street Scene Operatives to join our team within Street Scene Services. As a Seasonal Street Scene Operative you will work as part of an experienced team to provide a high quality environmental maintenance service including both planned and reactive work for all aspects of street cleansing and grounds maintenance functions.
You will carry out all aspects of maintenance of turf areas, ornamental beds and horticultural displays including soil preparation, edging, strimming, pruning, hedge maintenance and weed control. You will also undertake all aspects of manual cleansing of public spaces including litter picking, sweeping, removal of weed growth from pathways, fly tipping removal, emptying of litter and dog bins in addition to the removal of graffiti and fly posters as directed.
The successful candidates will hold minimum qualifications of GCSE English and Maths, Grade C or above (or a grade 4 or above under the new qualification framework) (experience within a similar role may satisfy this requirement). You will have experience of working as part of an operational team, and experience of using commercial handheld plant and machinery.

PRAYERS

PRAYER TO THE BLESSED VIRGIN

Never known to fail.

O most beautiful flower of Mount Carmel, faithful Mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in this necessity, O Star of the Sea, help me and show me herein you are my Mother, O Holy Mary Mother of God, Queen of Heaven and Earth, I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my heart to succour me in my necessity.

(Make Request).

There are none that can withstand your powers. Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee (3 Times).

Sweet Mother, I place this cause in your hands (3 times).

Thank you for your mercy towards me and mine.

This prayer must be said for three days and after that the request will be granted and the prayer must be published.

Life On Cars
DAVID SIMISTER
www.lifeoncars.co.uk

KEEN students of irony will surely remember the past week as a pivotal week in Europe's transport. In the same week that Chris Grayling announced that it won't be too tricky to police Britain's borders post-Brexit, some Dutch blokes decide to launch a production-ready flying car. But I wouldn't get too worried about the prospect of unchecked immigrants zipping straight over the customs booths at Dover while border officials look on helplessly from the ground, perhaps wondering whether some sort of giant net needs to be built from the white cliffs upwards.

If you've genuinely trekked halfway across Europe in search of a better life in Blighty, you almost certainly aren't going to spend Lamborghini Aventador money on the new PAL-V Liberty to get there.

That's what this new three-wheeler, which has been claimed as a world first at this year's Geneva Motor Show because its makers are taking orders in readiness for a 2019 launch, are asking for.

For your £290,000 you get a mid-engined two-seater which uses not one, but two engines to rustle up 400bhp. The top speed's 100mph in the air and slightly more on the ground, and once you take off it'll be able to cruise for about four hours and roughly 300 miles before you need to fill it up again. And it runs on good old-fashioned petrol, since you're asking. It is the closest stab anyone's made so far at making a flying car that works, largely because its makers have realised that trying to mate an aeroplane or helicopter with a car always ends up being crushingly expensive to buy and run.

So they've based it on an autogyro instead - a petite flying wonder with wings that fold away and tiny, lightweight petrol engines. Sean Connery managed to fight off an entire squadron of helicopters with one in You Only Live Twice, so they can't be that bad!

But until someone invents a flying car that doesn't require a Lamborghini price tag and 35 hours of flight training I don't think they're going to take off (sorry).

Only when it offers Ford Focus-rivalling levels of practicality, an Audi A4-sized price tag and the intuitive driveability of either will we all be hopping into PAL-Vs and soaring through the skies to work. We've reached an age where we can wirelessly download Bruno Mars' entire back catalogue onto a mobile phone in a matter of minutes, but a vision of commuting imagined in The Jetsons still seems hopelessly distant. If you are serious about using the heavens over the M57 as your route to work I'd suggest a second-hand helicopter instead – the good ones start at about £50,000, which is a big saving over a PAL-V.

For everyone else it'll have to a Golf, Astra or Focus. Sorry, traffic jams are here to stay…

Both sides will hope to build on victories

SKELMERSDALE will hope to continue their good run of form with an away trip to Colwyn Bay this Saturday.

Having secured seven points from their last three games, Skem are suddenly looking ahead in the league table rather than behind.

Talk of relegation is not off the agenda completely but there is cause of optimism for supporters who will hope striker Bakkor can continue his form in front of goal.

Their opponents, Colwyn Bay, are 16 points ahead of Skem in the league table and have a good chance of finishing in the play-off places if they win their games in hand, so should offer a good test. When the sides played each other in December, Skem were beaten 2-0 but will fancy their chances if they can start the game well and score the first goal.

Burscough meanwhile are at home to relegation-threatened AFC Liverpool.

The Reds won't have far too travel with their home games played in at Marine FC's ground in Crosby. It will be viewed as a must win match for Burscough's opposition, who are fighting for survival at the foot of the table.

The Linnets are in action again on Tuesday, March 27 when they host Northwich Victoria in the Macron Cup quarter-final. Kick off is 7.45pm.

Bakkor's brace eases Skem relegation fears

Skelmersdale United 2
Colne 0

SKELMERSDALE have given themselves a huge chance of survival after picking up seven points from their last three games, writes Neil Leatherbarrow.

In a midweek fixture last week, Skem came from 2-0 down with 11 minutes to go at Kendal Town, with Scott Bakkor getting a hat-trick.

Skelmersdale looked upon the visit from Colne on Saturday positively and by half-time they were 2-0 up, Bakkor getting both the goals.

What is the significance of all this? Skelmersdale are now in the relatively luxurious position of being ten points clear of relegation with only eight games remaining instead of four points clear and anxiously looking over their shoulder.

Indeed Skelmersdale had the better of the first-half.

In the 38th minute Skelmersdale took the lead and it was all about Bakkor's sharpness in front of goal.

In what looked a nicely pre-rehearsed move Tom Molyneux drove a corner from the left into the near-post area, Bakkor lost his marker and flicked the ball back into the net from in front of the post, the power of the corner carrying the ball into the net.

Colne responded well and but for a good bit of covering by Arnie Baxendale they might have equalised as Alex Curran's shot had beaten Cheetham when Baxendale got back to clear it.

Moments before half-time Skelmersdale doubled their lead.

A Colne attack broke down and the ball went to Joyce on the right, the former St Johnstone player swung an excellent diagonal ball to Bakkor on the left.

He then outpaced Simon Nangle and created an angle to fire past Colne goalkeeper Hakan Burton to make it 2-0.

Colne were favourites to win on the day and they came out strongly after the interval, especially when the snow started to fall but Skem held on well.

Chris Cheetham makes a save for Skem

Whyte hat-trick gives Burscough much-needed breathing space

Burscough 4
Barnton 2

BURSCOUGH picked up three priceless points in a match they simply had to win.

It had all started so well for Burscough, a period of early pressure culminated in a goal after just five minutes when Whyte swept the ball under Barnton goalkeeper Callum Shuttleworth from eight yards.

But Barnton had other ideas and they started to dominate possession and push Burscough back and after 18 minutes Chris Bandell equalised.

In the 63rd minute Whyte met a corner with a flicked header that went into the far corner to restore Burscough's lead and bring some sighs of relief.

Burscough pull further away from the relegation zone

It looked like job done for the Linnets on 70 minutes when Peter Henerty stabbed home to make it 3-1, but Houghton pulled a goal back with a well struck free-kick high into the Burscough net. Burscough now only had a one goal margin and that is dangerous when you have to win.

In the 83rd minute, Burscough were reduced to ten men when Alex Parkes was given a straight red card after the referee deemed he had grabbed an attacker's neck during a challenge.

Barnton pushed forward, but to their credit Burscough limited them to not much in the way of chances.

Play entered four minutes added time and after around two minutes Burscough attacked down the right and Whyte netted to complete his hat-trick and confirm victory for Burscough, also sending Dave Sutton and his players into celebration.
